Steve Troxler
Commissioner

This year has really seemed to fly by, and it is almost hard to believe that once again it is time for the State Fair. This annual event, celebrated by thousands, is a highlight of the year for me and the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services because it gives us the opportunity to showcase North Carolina agriculture.

Across the fairgrounds, you'll find traditions and cultural attractions from North Carolina's past. You'll also see the handiwork and artistic and culinary skills of fellow residents. And, of course, you'll see examples of North Carolina's agricultural diversity and agricultural economy on display and in competition. This mix is what makes the annual N.C. State Fair a celebration of all the best that North Carolina has to offer.

Every year I hear stories from fairgoers about their favorite experience or activity at the Fair. Some people tell me how many years they have been coming and how they wouldn't miss a Fair because it is an event they look forward to year after year.

If you asked 100 different people what drew them to the fair, you might get 50 different answers. Food always seems to be the number one draw, and you can be assured you will find plenty of good eating options at the Fair. I personally am glad I have 11 days to spread it over.

The livestock shows, giant pumpkins and watermelons, decorated cakes and canned goods, and Folk Festival are also popular attractions. One of my favorite events is putting in the barn of tobacco on opening day to cure the old-fashioned way during the

It's time for the N.C. State Fair; annual fall tradition runs 11 days -- Oct. 16-26

Plenty of activities planned for the whole family to enjoy

The N.C. State Fair in Raleigh offers a great entertainment bargain for families because the price of admission includes hours and hours of fun activities for the smallest to the largest kids in the family.

"When you are making your plans for the Fair, one of the best things to do is pick up a copy of the daily schedule or go online to create a personalized daily planner," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "That way you can map out your day so you can see Smithfield the Painting Pig, catch the cloggers at the Folk Festival, have lunch, see the exhibits, ride some rides, eat dinner and still have time to see a livestock show, magic show or a juggler before the fireworks go off at 9:45 p.m."

The State Fair is always a mix of the old and new, and the 2008 Fair will keep with that tradition. Fairgoers can find some traditional crafts, agricultural tools, entertainment and history in the following exhibits and areas:

■ Folk Festival (behind the Kerr Scott Building): This marks the 60th anniversary of the State Fair Folk Festival, which was started to preserve and celebrate the state's musical and dance heritage. The 10-day competition features shows daily at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

■ Pitzer Heritage Circle (near Gate 8): Fairgoers interested in the history of the State Fair can learn about its two previous locations, the Fair's early beginnings as a way to share the latest crop production techniques with farmers, and see photos and other Fair memorabilia. (See Family fun, pg. 2)

Walk-up sales for State Fair advance tickets start Oct. 2

Fairgoers eager to save money on their trip to the N.C. State Fair will now have nine additional locations to purchase advance tickets in addition to the Fair's Web site. Online sales are under way through Oct. 16, and walk-up locations will open Oct. 2-16.

Buying advance tickets will save $2 per adult admission ticket and $8 per ride sheet. Advance admission tickets will cost $5 for adults and $1 for children ages 6-12. Adult admission tickets for groups of 40 or more will cost $4.75 each. A coupon that can be redeemed at the Fair for a sheet of 18 ride tickets will cost $10 in advance.

In Raleigh, tickets will be sold at four locations: Gate 9 at the State Fairgrounds, the N.C. Museum of History, Triangle Town Center and the State Farmers Market. In Durham, fairgoers can purchase tickets at Northgate Mall and The Streets at Southpoint. Tickets will also be available at Four Seasons Town Centre in Greensboro, Burlington Square Mall in Burlington and Wilson Mall in Wilson. Tickets will be available during normal mall or museum hours, between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. at the State Fairgrounds, and 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the State Farmers Market. Tickets are also available online at the State Fair's Web site, www.ncstatefair.org.

All locations will accept cash, Visa and MasterCard.

Go to www.ncstatefair.org for more information. The 2008 State Fair will be held Oct. 16-26 at the N.C. State Fairgrounds.
